proximity to many beaches. Museu de Portimão is housed in a restored 19th-century cannery, with displays on local history. The Gothic-style Nossa Senhora da Conceição church has azulejo tiles. To the south are Rocha Beach, backed by ochre cliffs, and the medieval Fort of Santa Catarina de Ribamar.Close by to Alvor a former fishing village on Portugal's southern coast has become a popular resort. Spend a day on Alvor's main beach, or find one of the smaller, secluded coves along the coastline. In the evening, stroll through the town's narrow cobblestone streets, dine on fresh local seafood, and enjoy live music at one of the many lively bars.

Faro International Airport is some 45 minutes by car on the main Algarve Motorway.
